PUBLIC ROADS

FUEL SAVED BY GOOD ROADS

Wear and Tear on Trucks and Amount of Gasoline Consumed Shown in Recent Ohio Test.

A test conducted in Ohio recently to determine the saving in gasoline from running over a good road as compared with gas consumption over bad and medium-grade roads, disclosed a surprising difference. Five new army standard "A" trucks with seven different types of road service, showed a gain of six miles per gallon of fuel between the best and worst types of roads. All the trucks were empty during the test.

The trucks loaded showed that the poor road took seven times as much gasoline per mile as the good one.

The test results showed an average of 5.78 miles per gallon over a dirt road in good condition, 7.19 over fair gravel, 9.39 over good gravel, about the same over fair bituminous macadam and good brick roads, 11.44 over extra smooth brick and 11.78 over good concrete.

The saving to the motoring public in gasoline alone would amount to millions of dollars annually. Perhaps equal to this would be the saving in tires, which is considered as important an item of car upkeep as is gasoline. Calculating the saving in wear and tear on the mechanism of cars and trucks and also the item of time lost by poor roads, adequate highways are undoubtedly a sane investment.

CULVERT IS EASILY CLEANED

Much Trouble Obviated by Invention of Grate or Iron Bars, Resting in Notches.

Often culverts under roads and paths become clogged with debris and frequently give trouble because they cannot be readily cleaned. The device illustrated obviates all this difficulty. It consists of a grate of iron bars supported by crosspieces which rest in notches or upon the surface of stonework or concrete, says American Agriculturist. The bars and the crosspieces should be of heavy enough material to support any load that will be driven across the grating.

The one from which this drawing was made is in a footpath, so the bars were only 1½ inches wide and a quarter of an inch thick. The crosspieces are of the same material, bent at the ends and riveted to the bars. All that is necessary to clean such a culvert is to lift the grating and do the work with a spade or a hoe.

HIGHWAYS IN SOUTH DAKOTA

State Has 6,000 Miles of Improved Roads—Only Ten Other States Exceed in Mileage.

South Dakota has 6,000 miles of main highways, out of a total of 203,523 in the United States. Definite road systems have been established in 44 states, either through legislative action or through state and local officials. North Dakota has 4,000 miles and Minnesota 12,700. Only ten states exceed South Dakota in mileage, while several of them have less than 1,000 miles of main highway.

BIG HIGHWAY APPROPRIATION

State of Wyoming Has Let Contracts for Improvements to Cost $3,000,000 in 1920.

The total estimated cost of highway improvements for which the Wyoming state highway department has let contracts, and which will be completed during the present year, exceeds $3,000,000. This total represents $15 for each inhabitant of the state.

Moroccan Road Traffic.

Traffic on the (French) Moroccan highways is very large. In addition to the transport of passengers by private or public automobiles, the roads permit an important movement of merchandise by motortrucks.

Cities Could Not Survive.

Without roads, cities could not survive, and country-folk would be without many of the present necessities, comforts, and luxuries of life, which they are now able to enjoy.

Life's Little Jest

ON SECOND THOUGHT.

"I've got a scheme," said Farmer Cornstossel. "When it's time to get busy on the farm, I'll get a camera and have photographs made of how farmin' is done. That'll put the hired men an' the farmerettes and everybody on their mettle. They'll all imagine they're moving picture stars."

"It's a fine idea," answered the wife.

"Only think of the salaries they'll demand!"

Getting Information.

"Sometimes," said Senator Sorghum, "I am tempted to believe in this ouija board business."

"Getting superstitious?"

"Not exactly. But there must be some supernatural way for all these orators to have found out exactly what George Washington would have said under these circumstances."

Clever Idea.

Transportation Manager — What's the idea of raising that brakeman's pay? What did he do?

President—Invented a burglar alarm for every freight car.

Transportation Manager — Burglar alarm?

President—Yep; puts a bar of soap in each freight car.

Dressing Up.

Mrs. Lastery—My good man, is that outer garment you are wearing an exclusive design?

The Plumber—You mean my overalls, ma'am? No'm. Buy 'em any where.

Mrs. Lastery—Then you won't mind my copying the bodice for a new evening gown I'm having made?

FREE FOR ALL.

"My apartment house is very noisy. I suffer in silence."

"You don't have to do that. Get a graphophone yourself."

Any Chump Can Do It.

For him who needlessly complains I do not care a feather. I've found it doesn't call for brains to criticize the weather.

The Kind.

"I am looking for a place where I can fill a temporary vacancy."

"There's a restaurant just over the way, sir, where a number of people are doing it."

The Reason.

"Don't go into this spelling bee."

"Why not?"

"Because with your limitations, you will find yourself in a hornet's nest."

No Smoking Allowed.

"Did you tell her that smoking isn't allowed?"

"Yes."

"Did you point out the notice?"

"Yes."

"Well, what did she do?"

"Lit her cigarette with it."—Tit-Bits.

Shakespearean Citation.

Professor of English Literature—Can you cite any passage from Shakespeare which presages the coming of the automobile?

Freshman—Yes, sir. "Curses not loud, but deep."

It Depends.

Prospective Lodger—What's the rent of this room, including the use of the piano?

Landlady—I can't say off-hand. You must play me something first.

Accounting for It.

He—Statistics show that more bachelors are criminals than married men.

She—That is because the bachelors have nobody to blame it on.

Great Carrying On.

Mrs. Newbride—My dear, I'm so worried. Our cook is carrying on something awful.

Mrs. Oldbride—Mine did the same thing. Carried away enough to start a small grocery store.

Literal Improvement.

"When she was taxed with her want of neatness, she swept out the room with disdain."

"It would have been more to the purpose if she swept it out with a broom."

LOCK YOUR AUTO FOR PROTECTION

Carelessness on the Part of Owners Is Direct Cause of Cars Being Stolen.

MOTORS ARE LEFT RUNNING

Others Leave Machines Standing at Curb With Everything in Starting Position—Several Ways of Guarding Against Theft.

A great many cars are stolen due to the carelessness of the owners. Some owners will leave a car standing for several minutes unwatched and with the motor running. A passing thief can jump in and be far away before the owner can begin pursuit. Other owners leave cars standing at the curb with everything in starting position.

Cars Provided With Keys.

All cars are provided with keys to be removed from the ignition system which will prevent the motor from being started.

Removing the Rotor From the Distributor Box Disconnects the Ignition System.

ing started unless a similar key is used or the ignition wires are tampered with. But such duplicate keys can be easily obtained.

In some of the modern types of motors, with the popular distributor system of ignition, the removal of the rotor from the box will usually prove effective. The possible thief might not have a similar one in his pocket; in fact, he would be very unlikely to have. This part is shown by the arrow in the first illustration.

Thieves Work Together.

Two enterprising thieves working together sometimes tow a car away as shown in the second sketch. A heavy chain with a large brass lock (iron is too easily cracked) is good protection against such efforts. Chain the front wheel to the axle or fender brace.

The type of car which uses coils in the ignition can be pretty well protected by the removal of two or more coil units. A coil usually weighs a couple of pounds and it is not likely that the enterprising crook would have over five or six of these concealed about his person.—W. V. Reina in Farm and Field.

ILLUSTRATION OF TRAFFIC CONDITIONS

A novelty which illustrates perfectly traffic conditions at the time of accidents has been put into use in the police court of Washington with great success. The invention is the product of a member of the Washington police department. Every type of vehicle is represented in the models, and the "set up" gives a better idea of what happened in an accident than words alone can convey.

LUBRICANT FOR DOOR HINGES

Linseed Oil Mixed With Small Amount of Graphite Is Recommended—Avoid Cylinder Oil.

Linseed oil mixed with a small amount of graphite is recommended as a lubricant for door hinges and latches, which seldom receive attention in this way. Ordinary cylinder oil has a tendency to run, which is not desirable at this location, because the clothes of passengers are likely to come in contact with it.

Tightening Bearing Caps.

In removing play from rod bearings by reducing shim thickness, great care should be exercised to get each rod bearing as free as every other bearing.

DON'T TRY THIS TRICK.

Another has been added to the time-tried methods of self-extinction—one where the simple minded individual blew out the gas and the other where the curious party looked down the barrel of a shotgun to see if it was loaded.

The third method is where the forgetful or ignorant motor car owner goes into his garage, carefully shuts the door, closes the windows, and then starts his engine. As a method of suicide, it is perfect, being quick, painless and effective.

This would be a good subject for a striking poster to be tacked up in the garage as a constant reminder to the owner. Probably most motorists know the danger now, but some do not, and the others may forget. "One lapse of memory is sufficient."

HANDY TOOL BOX FOR GARAGE

Man Who Does Much Work at Home Can Arrange Two-Shelf Receptacle for Articles.

A useful tool box for the man who does much work about his garage may be made by constructing a two-shelf box, each shelf being V-shaped, so that the tools will not roll off. The shelves should be six or eight inches apart, so that free access is permitted.

TROUBLE FOUND IN AMMETER

High or Low Rate of Discharge Shows That Battery Is Not Getting Proper Current.

When the ammeter shows a rate of charge or discharge very much higher than usual it may be accepted as an indication that there is a cross somewhere, so that the battery is not getting the current intended for it.

REPAIRING TEAR IN CAR TOP

Use Woolen Yarn to Draw Edges Together, After Which Apply Material With Cement.

To mend a tear in the top it is best to use woolen yarn to draw the edges together, after which a top material similar to that of the top is applied with rubber cement, set by the vulcanizer.

AUTOMOBILE HINTS

One of the best rules for keeping a car out of the repair shop is the proper use of lubricants.

It is claimed for the new multiblade fans that they double the volume of air passing through the radiator, keeping the engine cooler in summer.

What, asks Motor Age, has become of the old fashioned motorist who wiped his feet before getting into his car?

American motor cars sell in Venezuela at prices ranging from 50 to 100 per cent more than the prices asked in the United States.

It is advisable to clean and readjust the spark plug occasionally. The points wear away gradually and if not readjusted, cause irregular firing.

Memorial to Norsemen.

Nearly five centuries before Columbus sailed to America, according to some historians, a party of Norsemen landed on the northeastern coast of the continent, and a few years later established a colony. As a memorial to these early explorers a rough stone tower has been erected at Auburndale, Mass., a town that is believed to occupy the same site as the legendary settlement. Investigation has failed to reveal any traces of building ruins in the vicinity, but has resulted in the finding of several old stone walls, which are thought to have been constructed by the inhabitants of the ancient village.

Held to All Superstitions.

When the first missionaries visited Marsovan, Turkey, the old Armenian church members were Christians in little more than name. Their beliefs were a mixture of superstitions with a suggestion of a Christian origin. They feared the evil eye, and wore charms to break its power. They put branches of a thorny plant over their chimneys in the form of a cross to prevent witches from coming down and strangling their little children. They visited the graves of saints and offered prayers for relief from sickness, tying a rag on a bush nearby with the hope of returning home leaving their disease tied to the holy spot.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarrhal Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. ## PERFECTION NOT OFTEN SEEN Assertion Made That Not One Person in Ten Thousand Is Absolutely Sane.

Perfect health of mind and body are both exceedingly rare. Not one "civilized" person out of ten thousand is perfectly healthy. Not one civilized person out of ten thousand is perfectly sane. That is to say, absolutely level-headed in all respects, not attaching undue importance to his own hobby, and with no prejudices against new ideas, able to appreciate the other side of the question and to change his ideas when he is convinced that he is wrong.

Sanity has been defined as "the ability to accommodate oneself to one's environment." Not a bad definition. Those who deify the manners and customs of other races or people, merely because they are different from their own are not entirely sane.—Los Angeles Times.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Hordes of tiny tollers are working in our service night and day to keep the world wholesome and all the races of beings supplied with life stuff.

SALADS, SOME OLD, SOME NEW.

For any other meat except breakfast salads are a welcome part of any menu.

stuff tomatoes with the mixture thus prepared.

Brunswick Salad.—To one and one-half cups of finely cut celery add one cupful of shredded cabbage and one cupful of nut meats. Moisten with

Boiled Dressing.—Beat into the yolks of seven eggs four tablespoonfuls of olive oil, then add one-half cupful of melted butter, the juice of one lemon, three teaspoonfuls of salt, one-half cupful of vinegar, one tablespoonful of sugar mixed with one-half teaspoonful of mustard. Cook all together until mixture coats the spoon.

Potato Salad.—Slice all of the following ingredients thin: Three small cucumbers, three stalks of celery, ten small boiled potatoes, four hard cooked eggs. Arrange in layers, sprinkling each layer with minced onion. Pour over the above boiled dressing and let stand to season.

Berkshire Salad.—Mix two cupfuls of cold rice potatoes with one cupful of peach meats cut in bits. Marinate with French dressing and serve in a mound of watercress and garnish with halves of pecans.

Serve overlapping slices of tomato and cucumber, sprinkled with chopped onion. Serve with French dressing.

If you can't get to be uncommon through going straight you'll never get to do it through being crooked.—Dickens.

GOOD THINGS FOR NICE OCCASIONS.

Take a fillet of beef, trim it neatly and lay in a deep dish with an onion cut in slices, two bay leaves, a sprig of parsley, whole pepper and salt, and olive oil to taste. Let the fillet lie in this marinade for six hours, turning occasionally, then roast in a hot oven; let it be rather underdone. Serve surrounded by macaroni cooked as follows:

Put into a saucepan a half-cupful of tomato puree, three tablespoonfuls of butter and two or three tablespoonfuls of the meat gravy; season well with pepper and salt to taste. Bring to the boiling point and simmer for a few minutes, then add a little at a time, some previously-cooked macaroni. Toss all gently and mix in at the last, three teaspoonfuls of Parmesan cheese.

Spinach With Cream.—Wash three pounds of spinach and put it in a large saucepan; cook over the heat, stirring occasionally 12 minutes, then put through a fine sieve, saving all the liquor; add four tablespoonfuls of butter and pepper and salt to taste; cook slowly for 15 minutes, then add three tablespoonfuls of cream; mix well and pile in the center of a dish with fried croutons surrounding the spinach.

Poppy Seed Wafers.—Take two cupfuls of milk, two eggs, three tablespoonfuls of olive oil, three-fourths of a cup of sugar, one-fourth of a pound of poppy seeds, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a little salt and flour to roll out. Roll very thin, cut with a cookie cutter and bake in a hot oven.

Crème de Marrons.—Take half a pound of large chestnuts, cut a cross on each, and boil them in plenty of water till the outer and inner skins can be easily removed. Then pound them in a mortar, and pass through a fine sieve into a dish, adding a few drops of milk to soften the mixture. Next, beat the yolks of three eggs with one-half cupful of cream and the same of milk; sweeten with one-quarter of a cupful of sugar, add a few drops of vanilla and strain the mixture into a double boiler. Stir the mixture over the fire until it thickens, then add a little less than half an ounce of gelatin, which has been soaked in a little cold water and dissolved over the heat. Pour this custard gradually onto the chestnut puree, mixing well, then pour into a hollow mold. When ready to serve unmold and fill the center with a half-cupful of whipped cream colored with a bit of pink sugar.

If this whole world followed you—
Followed to the letter—
Would it be a nobler world,
All deceit and falsehood hurled
From it altogether;
Malice, selfishness and lust
Banished from beneath the crust
Covering hearts from view?
Tell me, if it followed you
Would the world be better?

OUR DAILY FOOD.

Here is a fruit soup that someone who is fond of such soups may desire to try:

Prune Soup.—Wash and soak one pound of prunes in three pints of cold water overnight. In the morning heat slowly and add one lemon sliced very thin, and one stick of cinnamon; cook below the simmering point until the prunes are tender but not broken. Add water if needed, as there should be three pints when done; add three tablespoonfuls of sugar, a pinch of salt and sufficient sugar to sweeten. Cook until the soup is transparent. Remove the cinnamon, add two-thirds of a cupful of orange juice, reheat and serve at once.

Quick Coffee Cake.—Sift together one pint of flour, one-third of a cupful of sugar, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, half a teaspoonful each of salt and cinnamon. Mix to a soft dough with half a cupful of milk stirred into a beaten egg. Add four tablespoonfuls of softened butter. Spread the mixture in a shallow pan and sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon. Add raisins if desired. Bake in a moderate oven and serve with coffee.

Creamed Liver.—Take calf's liver left from a previous meal, chop it and add to a cream sauce. Arrange thin slices of toasted bread with a slice of cooked bacon on each; pour over the creamed liver and serve.

Baked Squabs.—Cut five squabs into four pieces each and flatten lightly by pounding. Put the livers to cook in a little salted water. Season each piece of squab with salt and pepper. Line a baking dish with chopped ham, sprinkle with chopped chives, place a layer of squabs, then a layer of hard cooked eggs, a sprinkling of ham, chives and another layer of squabs. Crush the livers, mix with one tablespoonful each of flour and butter, add a pint of chicken or veal stock and pour over the squabs. Cover with oiled paper and bake one hour.

Who bears another's burden will find from day to day
His own is always lightened or lifted quite away.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE INVALID.

If ever pains should be taken to serve daintily and garnish dishes appropriately, it is when serving an invalid. Small portions of food of the right temperature on our prettiest china served with the cook's best skill will make the food appetizing.

Beef-Tea Jelly.—Cover with cold water one-third of a box of gelatin; let stand one hour then pour over two cupfuls of boiling beef tea, season to taste and set aside to cool in small cups. Serve with toasted crackers.

Calf's-Foot Broth.—Cut up two calf's feet and put them into a saucepan with two quarts of water, a carrot, a few pieces of celery or leaves, salt and mace to season. Simmer for three hours slowly until half of the liquor is cooked away; strain and add more seasoning if needed.

Barley Water.—Take four tablespoonfuls of pearl barley, well washed add three cupfuls of water, boil for 25 minutes; sweeten and flavor to taste.

Oatmeal Gruel.—Take four tablespoonfuls of oatmeal mixed with half a cupful of water, cold. Put a pint of water in a saucepan with a pinch of salt. When boiling stir in the oatmeal; boil slowly for 20 minutes, strain and serve.

Egg Gruel.—Beat the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth, then add one cupful of fresh barley gruel; allow it to stand over the heat without boiling, then add such seasoning as desired. Turn into a mold and serve cold with cream.

Chicken Puree.—Take the white meat from the breast of a chicken which has been roasted; add a tablespoonful of bread crumbs. Pound the bread and meat, mixing with a little broth to moisten to the consistency of cream, season to taste, heat and serve in small bouillon cups.

Milady Goes In for Accessories

The accessories of dress play no small part in the fashions of the moment. Along with the high cost of living a reckless expenditure of money for every detail of a woman's toilette has developed. One would think observes a prominent fashion writer, that money had no value whatever in the eyes of the world and that woman's supreme desire was the possession of everything that is beautiful and flattering, regardless of cost.

This craze, as it were, for spending money is psychological. It is commodities that the world lacks now and not money. Therefore, the value of all material things is enhanced in the eyes of the prospective purchaser. There is an aversion for the possession of articles of adornment rather than for money.

Many of the most reckless spenders are those who before the war did not have great fortunes. Money has come easily and it goes quickly. This is why a woman will pay as much today for some dainty nonessential accessory of the toilette as she paid yesterday for a basic necessity. Apparently, she does not care that her veil costs as much as her hat, her purse as much as her dress, her fan as much as a coat and her hair ornaments as much as she once spent for real jewels.

Headress Consisting of a Jewel Fore-head Band and Pendant From Which Spring Fine Gold Wires. Two Carved and Jeweled Combs.

Nothing Too Extreme.
No evening toilette is complete without some form of headdress or hair ornament, and nothing seems too extreme or fantastic to find favor. The hair is dressed very simply and close to the head. All extravagance of outline is given, therefore, by ornaments or garnitures of the most striking sort.

The interest in Spanish fashions manifests itself markedly in the high back Spanish comb, delicately carved and set with real or imitation jewels and sometimes with the high open back holding a panel of priceless lace.

There are also Egyptian hair ornaments of Egyptian and Greek types. In fact, almost every source of inspiration has been drawn upon to provide designs. The antennae of the butterfly are worked out in fine gold wires springing from a jeweled pendant adorning the forehead.

Back to the Old Days.

Even the crude art of the American Indian has been resorted to in this mad rush for ornamentation. Like the wife of an oldtime Indian chief, the woman of today wears headdresses of dyed feathers and necklaces of wooden beads. To keep the latter from being inexpensive a costly ornament of some sort, such as a piece of carved jade with a brilliant pendant, is attached.

Umbrella handles continue to be of enormous size. The last word in these is a big stick of ivory inlaid with black carved dots imitating onyx. Heads of animals, such as walrus, goats, various dogs, and even seals, are carved on umbrella handles. Even the suggestion of having portrait carvings made of favorite pets for such decorations has been advanced. Some of the very best French artisans are said to be now engaged in carving such portraits on wood and ivory.

The new purses are either ample sacks, which serve for both day and evening affairs, or small, flat effects; the latter are reserved for occasions where one does not need a commodious handbag.

Tortoise Shell Vogue.

All the tortoise shell procurable has not been used for combs; it plays no small part in the new purses. In those which are of the small variety, like oldtime card cases, the shell is combined with leather, one side being of shell and the other of suede. A purse made in this manner has the inside divided into two compartments; one of suede is used for money, while the other, of white kid, is intended for trinkets or jewels.

A new bag is of pale gray doeskin mounted on a tortoise shell frame, the shell clasp being in the form of a spread fan. The handle or pendant for opening the purse is also of shell.

Raspberry Red Seal.

A distinctly new vanity case is of carved ivory. The plaques forming the body of the case are of ivory mounted in a gold frame and the bellows are of gray doeskin. The monogram is of Japanese character carved and picked out in black.

A fascinating little vanity case is made of raspberry red seal in oblong design with slightly rounding corners. The handle consists of four straps ending in a silver medallion inserted with Italian mosaic. On the outside of the case is a handkerchief pocket. Cases of this sort should carry the initial of the owner in silver or gold, according to the mountings of the purse.

Flat folded purses in billbook form are receiving considerable attention. These are quite different from the usual commonplace leather ones. They are developed both in leather and in satin with inset panels of rare needlework tapestry which are often tiny bits cut from historic pieces torn apart in the devastation of the war.

Carried on Bracelets

When silk is used for the flat bags it is of the heavier type, such as faille, the softer silks being reserved for those of the puffy type.

Gallith, dyed in all colors, is used on bags. It takes the form of bracelets, dangling ornaments, chains, tops and cuplike bottoms of bags, to which silk tops are attached. This is a good way to introduce a bit of color into a costume, and is at the same time a less expensive mode than the beaded bag, which, when beautiful in color, is quite expensive.

A bag on which gallith is used is in melon shape, with the cuplike bottom just described and a silk pouch top gathered by a drawstring. There is a cap of the gallith with holes in the top, through which the drawstring slips. The cap is pushed down to form a cover for the top of the bag.

Ever so many of the new bags are carried on bracelets. It may be just a bright colored gallith bracelet or one of solid gold, or even of platinum set with precious stones. This fashion for bracelet handles furnishes an excellent opportunity for introducing costly effects in bags. This, unfortunately, seem to be one of the present-day demands. It appears that the whole idea of usefulness and beauty is lost in this craze for possessing things that are of difficult, intricate and costly workmanship.

Before passing from the subject of bracelets a description of a new novelty gallith bracelet in bright coral color may be interesting. It is made in small rectangular pieces about 1 inch long and ½ inch wide. Holes are pierced in the gallith and through them very narrow elastic is run to make the bracelet pliable, so that it will fit any part of the arm. In these bracelets we see the return of a fashion of our grandmothers' days. At that time, however, the gallith bracelets were always black, never in bright colors.

Panniers caught up in puffs add the necessary bouffant effect on some of the newest skirt models.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

INTERPRETING SCOUT OATH

There is something about that scout oath and law of ours that puts the iron in the blood and the steel into the soul, says Richard Brauenstein of Sharon, Conn.

Just think what the result will be when every boy of scout age in the land begins to interpret that oath and law in his daily life, his walk and talk. We will be giving the world what Professor James calls "the moral equivalent of war."

This learned man said, "The martial character can be bred without war." He tells us that the military ideals of hardihood and discipline can be imbued into the life of young America, by conscripting every man into the struggle with nature.

"To coal and iron mines, to freight trains, to fishing fleets in December, to road building and stoke holes and to the frames of skyscrapers would our gilded youth be drafted to get the childishness knocked out of them and to come back to society with healthier sympathies and soberer ideas."

It was Tennyson who wrote, "Peace hath her victories no less renowned than war." And in that oath and law of ours I see potentialities, sublimities, majesties, achievements.

SCOUT SMILE HIS UNIFORM.

"A scout has two uniforms. One he seldom dons," writes Colin H. Livingstone, president of the Boy Scouts of America. "The other he oftentimes dons. The first is a clean and smiling face, the evidence of a clear conscience and a healthy body, a wonderful invitation to everyone around to look and be happy and cheerfully to do their bit. This smile is subtle and far-reaching in its influence."

"It is a sign of self-conquest, an emblem of leadership, compelling attention in its radiation of cheerfulness. Scouts, this uniform of yours is not made in a loom, but made in the heart and worn to make the world brighter and better and worn to show everyone that in your mind and life there is hope, happiness, kindness and the courage to look, to say and to act the pledges you made at the moment you promised to be a scout, to be a leader."

"Go forth, Scouts, with this smile, to win for your plan of life others who will smile with you. Never take off the uniform of the smile."

"IT CANNOT BE DONE."

Somebody said "it couldn't be done." But the scout, with a chuckle, replied that maybe it couldn't but he would be one.

Who wouldn't say so till he'd tried. So he buckled right in, with a trace of a grin. And he started to sing as he tackled the thing That couldn't be done, and he did it.

Somebody scoffed, "Oh, you'll never do that; At least no one ever has done it." The scout took his coat off and took off his hat.

And the first thing we know he'd begun it. With the lift of his chin and a bit of a grin. He started to sing as he tackled the thing That couldn't be done, and he did it.

There are thousands to tell you it cannot be done; There are thousands to prophesy failure; There are thousands to give you the list one by one.

Of dangers that wait to assail you. But take off your coat and go to it; Just start in to sing as you tackle the thing That cannot be done and you'll do it. —J. SCOTT CASE.

SCOUT WINS AUSTRIAN FLAG.

The announcement of prize winners in the army essay contest was made by the army board of adjudication in the New York district, which has selected the prize essays from among those submitted by boy scouts.

Walter A. Helbrigg, sixteen-year-old senior of Morris high school and a scout in Troop No. 140 of the Bronx, was awarded the chief honors, his essay being selected as the winning one for the entire district and for the Borough of the Bronx.

The prize as district winner is an Austrian flag, brought to this country as a war trophy by an English Red Cross officer. As borough winner he has won for his school a silk American flag, which will be awarded by a war veterans' organization.

SCOUTS LOCATE LOST CHILD.

When neighbors were about to give up the search for a two-year-old boy who had wandered into the woods near his home, the scouts of Naugatuck, Conn., were called to carry on the search, and after working well into the night they found the child.

GOOD TURNS OF THE SCOUTS.

Scout Troop No. 1 of Manchester, Vt., aided the family of a scout sent to the hospital.

The Rotarians of Sheboygan, Wis., have bought a week-end camp as a present to the boy scouts.

Scout-Bollinger of Troop No. 14, Boise, Idaho, while making his paper route at three o'clock in the morning discovered a blaze in a garage. He awakened the family and saved the garage and the car.

THE PLATYPUS.

"I don't believe any creature is just like me," said Mr. Platypus.

"I am," said Mrs. Platypus. "I mean outside the family," said Mr. Platypus.

"Then you should have said what you meant in the first place instead of wasting all this valuable time," said Mrs. Platypus.

"Why is the time valuable and why shouldn't I waste it?" asked Mr. Platypus. "I am sure a platypus should have some rights in the world. He's a part of it."

"But a queer part," said Mrs. Platypus.

"You are as rude to yourself as you are to me when you say that," said Mr. Platypus, "so I don't mind."

"Glad of that," said Mrs. Platypus. "Why is time valuable and why shouldn't I waste it if I want to?" asked Mr. Platypus.

"Because it is valuable, as the same time never comes again."

"Two o'clock comes every day at two o'clock and six o'clock comes every day at six o'clock, and eight o'clock comes every day at eight o'clock," said Mr. Platypus.

"But the eight o'clock of yesterday doesn't come back again. The time that has past doesn't come back again. That's what I mean," said Mrs. Platypus. "Of course, I don't care if you waste the time, but some folks make a great fuss about time and whether it is wasted or not."

"Well, don't let us bother," said Mr. Platypus.

"Oh, all right," said Mrs. Platypus.

"I was saying," began Mr. Platypus, "that I don't believe there are any other creatures like our family. Now I am a mixture of animal and fish and bird. I have a bill like a duck and my feet are web feet. My tail is queer and horny."

"I like to live by the sea or else in the forests. There is a good variety for you."

"Thank you," said Mrs. Platypus. "I'm very, very old. When I'm pleased I rub my back on a rock. I dive very well, too."

"Now, some creatures, when they're pleased, laugh; others smile, some jump up and down with joy. Some chuckle and some grunt and some sniff with pleasure."

"Some whistle and some talk cheerfully. All of these things are very usual to do. I wouldn't do them because they are so usual."

"It isn't every creature, as I said before, that can be fish and animal and bird at the same time. I can swim, and yet I enjoy the forests, as I said before, too.

"And as I'm so different from all other creatures I should behave differently."

"And you do," said Mrs. Platypus.

"And so do you," said Mr. Platypus.

"Well," he continued, "if I were but a bird I would sing and do things like that."

"If I were but a fish I would swim and look at creatures out of my glassy eyes."

"If I were but a land animal I would walk about and get my food and become friendly with many men and women and children—if I were a friendly sort of animal."

"But as I'm a platypus and as even my name is different I must do everything in an unusual and interesting way."

"It strikes me that the most interesting thing I do is the way I show how joyful I am."

"And you show how joyful you are in the same way. It takes a creature with some brains to think of being cheerful in the way I am."

"Some creatures wouldn't think of rubbing their backs against a stone to show they were happy. It would never enter the heads of some creatures, if any."

"I can't imagine the creature they call a child for instance saying: 'Oh, goodie, I have a new toy. I am so delighted. I must at once find a rock and rub my back up against it to show how pleased I am.'"

"I can't imagine a child saying that, from what I've heard of them," said Mrs. Platypus.

"Ah, be thankful you're a platypus, as I am thankful, and let us rub our backs on yonder rocks."

Which, without another word, they did.

Fellow Feeling.

Why is sympathy like blind man's buff? Because it's a fellow-feeling for a fellow-creature.

UNCERTAIN

Could one go back to early youth,
And start life o'er again;
In fancy, then would good and truth
Be served with might and main.
What proof that one would better live,
Or muddled past improve:
Would self way to improvement give
Not run in the same old groove.
Would a dream come true? Hard to know,
How firmly one might stand;
Better to let all vain dreams go,
Tackle the chance at hand.

LOCAL NOTES

A JUNKETING TRIP

The News was represented by Mr. George B. Morgridge on the annual "Rim of the World Tour" this week, when the editors of Southern California were the guests of the San Bernardino Mountain Resort association. The Auto Club of Southern California assisted in furnishing transportation to the party of 100. Next week's News will contain a description of the delights to be found in the wonderful 101-mile drive, which includes the Little Bear and Big Bear Lake regions.

EARLY MORNING MAIL FROM LOS ANGELES

After several months of effort, Postmaster Morgridge has succeeded in securing an early morning mail from Los Angeles. The mail is dispatched by what is popularly known as "the newspaper car," reaching Sierra Madre about 5 a. m., so it is on hand for distribution when the post office opens. This mail will be a particular accommodation to business men and commuters who will appreciate receiving their business mail from Los Angeles the first thing in the morning. It will now be possible to answer such mail in time to dispatch replies on the 9 a. m. outgoing mail.

CALIFORNIA ART CLUB

Miss Ella Shepard Bush invited the California Art club and the California society of Miniature Painters to spend "an evening in Sierra Madre" to meet Miss Agnes L. Bush, a young artist of Seattle.

On June 10 sixty people enjoyed a supper in the garden of Estudio de la Hermosa Vista, at which Mrs. Stork read original poems by Mrs. Caroline Hutchinson Bowles, a Pasadena artist. The party visited at sunset the Japanese and Italian gardens of Miss Graham, where they deeply appreciated their beauty, planning to return to paint them.

At twilight Miss Graham and Miss Munsell opened their home for a musical program. Miss Dorothy Conner rendered some piano solos exquisitely. Mrs. Homer Glidden gave a series of Indian Love Lyrics on her cornet, accompanied by Mrs. George B. Morgridge. Mrs. Dorothy Gleason and other artists contributed vocal and instrumental solos with spirited effect.

Several guests drove from Laguna Beach for the evening. Others came from Long Beach and Santa Monica, as well as from Los Angeles.

Well, anyway, if Hoover didn't get it, the next best man did—and the country is saved again.

and furnished under schedule "B" of the specifications.

Each bidder under schedule "A" of the specifications must state the earliest date of complete delivery that he can guarantee.

The successful bidder under schedule "B" of the specifications will be required to commence the performance of his contract within ten days after notice of the delivery of materials called for under schedule "A" of said specifications and thereafter prosecute such work with due diligence.

The Board of Trustees reserves the right to reject any and all bids or any bid for any separate part of said work.

A number of farewell parties were given by friends here during the past week in their honor. They will be missed by a large circle of friends.

SYMPATHY

"I know how it feels to be beaten," was the laughing remark of Earl Topping when that vociferous native son, Hiram Johnson, was knocked down and dragged out at the Chicago convention.

Topping, it will be remembered, ran recently in Sierra Madre for city trustee. Either he failed to run fast enough or ran out of gas, for he did not connect with the exalted office to which he aspired.

"Johnson," said Topping to The News, "had plenty of speed but made too much noise. If Luther Burbank could only have crossed Hiram with Col. House, the Texas Sphinx, perhaps a winning strain might have been developed."

Incidentally it might be remarked that the genial Topping is a better loser than the favorite son from Sacramento. Maybe Sierra Madre people will remember this at the next election at which Earl is a candidate. That he will continue to be a candidate goes without saying. Being inculcated with the political virus usually condemns the unfortunate to a lifetime of "running."

BORN

Word has been received of the arrival of a son, William Edward, to Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Baugh, at the Pasadena hospital on Thursday, June 10. Mrs. Baugh is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Humphries and a former resident of Sierra Madre.

The Whole Secret of A Better Tire

Simply a Matter of the Maker's Policies

This you will realize—once you try a Brunswick—that a super-tire is possible only when the name certifies that the maker is following the highest standards.

For tire making is chiefly a matter of standards and policies—cost plus care. Any maker can build a good tire if he cares to pay perfection's price.

All men know Brunswick standards, for Brunswick products have been famous for 74 years.

Formulas, fabrics and standards vary vastly in cost. Reinforcements, plies and thickness are a matter of expense. And these variations affect endurance. It rests with the maker how far he wishes to go—how much he can afford to give.

For there are no secrets nor patents to hold one back.

To ascertain what each maker offers one must analyze and test some 200 tires—as our laboratories have done.

Then it is a matter of combining the best features and building according to the highest standards.

Once you try a Brunswick you will understand how we have built model tires, regardless of factory expense.

Yet Brunswick Tires cost you the same as other like-type tires. Our saving is on selling cost, through our nation-wide organization.

We realize that you expect more from Brunswicks, and we assure you that you get it. ONE Brunswick will tell you the story.

And then you'll want ALL Brunswicks. No other tire, you'll agree, gives so much for your money.

"I CAN'T FIGHT ANY MORE."

Synopsis.—Pioneer in the California redwood region, John Cardigan, at forty-seven, is the leading citizen of Sequoia, owner of mills, ships, and many acres of timber, a widower after three years of married life, and father of two-day old Bryce Cardigan. At fourteen Bryce makes the acquaintance of Shirley Sumner, a visitor at Sequoia, and his junior by a few years. Together they visit the Valley of the Giants, sacred to John Cardigan and his son as the burial place of Bryce's mother, and part with mutual regret. While Bryce is at college John Cardigan meets with heavy business losses and for the first time views the future with uncertainty. After graduation from college, and a trip abroad, Bryce Cardigan comes home. On the train he is interested in an attractive girl.

CHAPTER IV—Continued.

Bryce could see that she was the little daughter of some large rich man. The sparsity of jewelry and the rich simplicity of her attire proved that, and moreover she was accompanied by a French maid to whom she spoke in French in a manner which testified that before acquiring the French maid she had been in the custody of a French nurse. She possessed poise. For the rest, she had wonderful jet-black hair, violet eyes, and milk-white skin, a correct nose but a somewhat generous mouth. Bryce guessed she was twenty or twenty-one years old and that she had a temper susceptible of being aroused. The fact that this remarkable young woman had also left the train at Red Bluff further interested him, for he knew Red Bluff and while giving credit to the many lovely damsel of that little ambitious city, Bryce had a suspicion that to former Red Bluff girl would dare to invade the old home town with a French maid. He noted, as further evidence of the correctness of his assumption, that the youthful baggage-smasher at the station failed to recognize her and was evidently dazzled when, followed by the maid, struggling with two suit-cases, she approached him and in pure though alien English inquired the location of the best hotel and the hour and point of departure of the automobile stage for San Hedrin. The youth had answered her first question and was about to answer the second when George Sea Otter, in all his barbaric splendor, came pussy-footing around the corner of the station in old man Cardigan's regal touring-car.

The Highest Living Authority, following the gaze of the baggage-smasher, turned and beheld George Sea Otter. Beyond a doubt he was of the West westward. She noted the rifle-stock projecting from the scabbard, and a vision of a stage hold-up flashed across her mind. Ah, yes, of course—the express messenger's weapon, no doubt! And further to clinch her instant assumption that here was the pennant adorning the wind-shield!

Dismissing the baggage-smasher with a gracious smile, the Highest Living Authority approached George Sea Otter, noting, the while, further evidence that this car was a public conveyance, for the young man who had been her fellow-passenger was heading toward the automobile also. She heard him say:

"Hello, George, you radiant red rascal! I'm mighty glad to see you, boy. Shake!"

They shook, George Sea Otter's dark eyes and white teeth flashing pleasantly. Bryce tossed his bag into the tonneau; the half-breed opened the front door; and the young master had his foot on the running-board and was about to enter the car when a soft voice spoke at his elbow:

"Driver, this is the stage for Sequoia, is it not?"

George Sea Otter could scarcely credit his auditory nerves. "This car?" he demanded bluntly, "this—the Sequoia stage! Take a look, lady. This here's a Napier imported automobile. It's a private car and belongs to my boss here."

Bryce turned and lifted his hat.

"Quite naturally, you thought it was the Sequoia stage." He turned a smoldering glance upon George Sea Otter. "George," he declared ominously, but with a sly wink that drew the sting from his words, "if you're anxious to hold down your job, the next time a lady speaks to you and asks you a simple question, you answer yes or no and refrain from sarcastic remarks. Don't let your enthusiasm for this car run away with you." He faced the girl again. "Was it your intention to go to Sequoia on the next trip of the stage?"

She nodded.

"That means you will have to wait here three days until the stage returns from Sequoia," Bryce replied.

A shade of annoyance passed over the classic features of the Highest Living Authority. "Oh, dear," she complained, how fearfully awkward! Now I shall have to take the next train to San Francisco and book passage on the steamer to Sequoia—and Marcelle is such a poor sailor. Oh, dear!"

Bryce had an inspiration and hastened to reveal it.

"We are about to start for Sequoia now, although the lateness of our start will compel us to put up tonight at the rest-house on the south fork of Trinity river and continue the journey in the morning. However, this rest-house is eminently respectable and the food and accommodations are extraordinarily good for mountains; so, if an invitation to occupy the tonneau of my car will not be construed as an impertinence, coming as it does from a total stranger, you are at liberty to regard this car as to all intents and purposes the public conveyance which so scandalously declined to wait for you this morning."

She looked at him searchingly for a brief instant; then with a peculiarly winning smile and a graceful inclination of her head she thanked him and accepted his hospitality—thus:

"Why, certainly not! You are very kind, and I shall be eternally grateful."

"Thank you for that vote of confidence. It makes me feel that I have

"This Is the Stage for Sequoia, Is It Not?"

your permission to introduce myself. My name is Bryce Cardigan, and I live in Sequoia when I'm at home."

"Of Cardigan's redwoods?" she questioned. He nodded. "I've heard of you, I think," she continued. "I am Shirley Sumner."

"You do not live in Sequoia."

"No, but I'm going to hereafter. I was there about ten years ago."

He grinned and thrust out a great hand which she surveyed gravely for a minute before inserting hers in it. "I wonder," he said, "if it is to be my duty to give you a ride every time you come to Sequoia? The last time you were there you wheeled me into giving you a ride on my pony, an animal known as Midget. Do you, by any chance, recall that incident?"

She looked at him wonderingly. "Why—why, you're the boy with the beautiful Auburn hair," she declared. He lifted his hat and revealed his thick tangle in all its glory. "I'm not so sensitive about it now," he explained. "When we first met, reference to my hair was apt to rile me."

He shook his little hand with cordial good-nature. "George, suppose you pile Miss Sumner's hand-baggage in the tonneau and then pile in there yourself and keep Marcelle company. I'll drive; and you can sit up in front with me, Miss Sumner, snug behind the wind-shield where you'll not be blown about."

He went through his gears, and the car glided away on its journey. "By the way," he said suddenly as he turned west toward the distant blue mountains of Trinity county, "how did you happen to connect me with Cardigan's redwoods?"

"I've heard my uncle, Colonel Seth Pennington, speak of them."

"Colonel Seth Pennington means nothing in my young life. I never heard of him before; so I dare say he's a newcomer in our county. I've been away six years," he added in explanation.

"We're from Michigan. Uncle was formerly in the lumber business there, but he's logged out now."

"I see. So he came west. I suppose, and bought a lot of redwood lumber cheap from some old croaker who never could see any future to the redwood lumber industry. Personally, I don't think he could have made a better investment. I hope I shall have the pleasure of making his acquaintance when I deliver you to him. Perhaps you may be a neighbor of mine. Hope so."

At this juncture George Sea Otter, who had been an interested listener to the conversation, essayed a grunt from the rear seat. Instantly, to Shirley Sumner's vast surprise, her host grunted also; whereupon George Sea Otter broke into a series of grunts and guttural exclamations which evidently appeared quite intelligible to her host, for he slowed down to five miles an hour and cocked one ear to the rear; apparently he was profoundly interested in whatever information his henchman had to impart. When George Sea Otter finished his harangue, Bryce nodded and once more gave his attention to tossing the miles behind him.

"What language was that?" Shirley Sumner inquired, consumed with curiosity.

"Digger Indian," he replied. "George's mother was my nurse, and he and I grew up together. So I can't very well help speaking the language of the tribe."

They chattered volubly on many subjects for the first twenty miles; then the road narrowed and commenced to climb steadily, and thereafter Bryce gave all of his attention to the car, for a deviation of a foot from the wheel-rut on the outside of the road would have sent them hurtling over the grade into the deep-timbered canyons below. By reason of the fact that Bryce's gaze never wavered from the road immediately in front of the car, she had a chance to appraise him critically while pretending to look past him to the tumbled, snow-covered ranges to their right.

She saw a big, supple, powerful man of twenty-five or six, with the bearing and general demeanor of one many years his elder. His nose was high, of medium thickness and just a trifle long—the nose of a thinker. His ears were large, with full lobes—the ears of a generous man. The mouth, full-lipped but firm, the heavy jaw and square chin, the great hands (most amazingly free from freckles) denoted the man who would not avoid a fight worth while.

Upon their arrival at the rest-house, Bryce during dinner was very attentive and mildly amusing, although Shirley's keen wits assured her that this was merely a clever pose and sustained with difficulty. She was confirmed in this assumption when, after dinner, she complained of being weary and bade him good-night. She had scarcely left him when he called:

"George!"

The half-breed slid out of the darkness and sat down beside him. A moment later, through the open window of her room just above the porch where Bryce and George Sea Otter sat, Shirley heard the former say:

"George, when did you first notice that my father's sight was beginning to fail?"

"About two years ago, Bryce. He began to walk with his hands held out in front of him, and sometimes he lifted his feet too high."

"Can he see at all now, George?"

"Oh, yes, a little bit—enough to make his way to the office and back."

"Poor old governor! George, until you told me this afternoon, I hadn't heard a word about it. If I had, I never would have taken that two-year jaunt around the world. And you say this man Colonel Pennington and my father have been having trouble."

"Yes—" Here George Sea Otter gracefully unburdened himself of a fervent curse directed at Shirley's avuncular relative; whereupon that young lady promptly left the window and heard no more.

"Dad!" He Called.

They were on the road again by eight o'clock next morning, and just as Cardigan's mill was blowing the six o'clock whistle, Bryce stopped the car at the head of the street leading down to the water-front. "I'll let you drive now, George," he informed the silent Sea Otter. He turned to Shirley Sumner. "I'm going to leave you now," he said. "Thank you for riding over from Red Bluff with me. My father never leaves the office until the whistle blows, and so I'm going to hurry down to that little building you see at the end of the street and surprise him."

He stepped out on the running-board, stood there a moment, and extended his hand. Shirley had commenced a due and formal expression of her gratitude for having been delivered safely in Sequoia, when George Sea Otter spoke:

"Here comes John Cardigan," he said.

"Drive Miss Sumner around to Colonel Pennington's house," Bryce ordered, and even while he held Shirley's hand, he turned to catch the first glimpse of his father. Shirley followed his glance and saw a tall, powerfully built old man coming down the street with his hands thrust a little in front of him, as if for protection from some invisible assailant.

"Oh, my poor old father!" she heard Bryce Cardigan murmur. "My dear old pal! And I've let him grope in the dark for two years!"

He released her hand and leaped from the car. "Dad!" he called. "It is I—Bryce. I've come home to you at last."

The slightly bent figure of John Cardigan straightened with a jerk; he held out his arms, trembling with eagerness, and as the car continued on to the Pennington house Shirley looked back and saw Bryce folded in his father's embrace. She did not, however, hear the heart-cry with which the bearded old man welcomed his boy.

"Sonny, sonny—oh, I'm so glad you're back. I've missed you, Bryce. I've missed you. Bryce, I've missed you. Oh, son! I'm old—I can't fight any more. I'm blind—I can't see my enemies. I've lost your redwood trees—even your mother's Valley of the Giants."

And he commenced to weep for the third time in fifty years. And when the aged and helpless weep, nothing is more terrible. Bryce Cardigan said no word, but held his father close to his great heart and laid his cheek gently against the old man's tenderly as a woman might. And presently, from that silent communion of spirit, each drew strength and comfort. As the shadows fell in John Cardigan's town, they went home to the house on the hill.

Shirley Sumner's eyes were moist when George Sea Otter, in obedience to the instructions of his youthful master, set her, the French maid, and their hand-baggage down on the sidewalk in front of Colonel Seth Pennington's house. The half-breed hesitated a moment, undecided whether he would carry the hand-baggage up to the door or leave that task for a Pennington retainer; then he noted the tearstains on the cheeks of his fair passenger. Instantly he took up the hand-baggage, kicked open the iron gate, and preceded Shirley up the cement walk to the door.

"Just wait a moment, if you please, George," Shirley said as he set the baggage down and started back for the car. He turned and beheld her extracting a five-dollar bill from her purse. "For you, George," she continued. "Thank you so much."

In all his life George Sea Otter had never had such an experience—he, happily, having been raised in a country where, with the exception of waiters, only a pronounced yagant expects or accepts a gratuity from a woman. He took the bill and fingered it curiously; then his white blood asserted itself and he handed the bill back to Shirley.

"Thank you," he said respectfully. "If you were a man—all right. But from a lady—no. I am like my boss. I work for you for nothing."

Shirley did not understand his refusal, but her instinctive tact warned her not to insist. She returned the bill to her purse, thanked him again, and turned quickly to hide the slight flush of annoyance. George Sea Otter noted it.

"Lady," he said with great dignity, "at first I did not want to carry your baggage. I did not want to walk on this land." And with a sweeping gesture he indicated the Pennington grounds. "Then you cry a little because my boss is feeling bad about his old man. So I like you better. The old man—well, he has been like father to me and my mother—and we are Indians. My brothers, too—they work for him. So if you like my boss and his old man, George Sea Otter would go to hell for you pretty damn' quick. You bet your life!"

"You're a very good boy, George," she replied, with difficulty repressing a smile at his blunt but earnest avowal. "I am glad the Cardigans have such an honest, loyal servant."

George Sea Otter's dark face lighted with a quick smile. "Now you pay me," he replied and returned to the car.

The door opened, and a Swedish maid stood in the entrance regarding her stolidly. "I'm Miss Sumner," Shirley told her. "This is my maid Marcelle. Help her in with the hand-baggage." She stepped into the hall and called: "Ooh-hooh! Nunky-dunk!"

"Ship ahoy!" An answering call came to her from the dining room, across the entrance-hall and an instant later Colonel Seth Pennington stood in the doorway. "Bless my whiskers! Is that you, my dear?" he cried, and advanced to greet her. "Why, how did you get here, Shirley? I thought you'd missed the stage."

She presented her cheek for his kiss. "So I did, Uncle, but a nice red-haired young man named Bryce Cardigan found me in distress at Red Bluff, picked me up in his car, and brought me here." She sniffed adorably. "I'm so hungry," she declared, "and here I am, just in time for dinner. Is my name in the pot?"

"It isn't, Shirley, but it soon will be. How perfectly bully to have you with me again, my dear! And what a charming young lady you've grown to be since I saw you last! You're—why, you've been crying! By Jove, I had no idea you'd be so glad to see me again."

She could not forego a sly little smile at his egoism. "You're looking perfectly splendid Uncle Seth," she parried.

"And I'm feeling perfectly splendid. By the way, who did you say picked you up in his car?"

"Bryce Cardigan. Do you know him?"

"No, we haven't met. Son of old John Cardigan, I dare say. I've heard of him. He's been away from Sequoia for quite a while, I believe. About time he came home to take care of that stiff-necked old father of his." He stepped to the bell and pressed it, and the butler answered. "Set a place at dinner for Miss Shirley, James," he ordered. "Thelma will show you your rooms, Shirley. I was just about to sit down to dinner. I'll wait for you."

"Why, How Did You Get Here, Shirley?"

While Shirley was in the dining room Colonel Pennington's features wore an expression almost pontifical, but when she had gone, the atmosphere of paternalism and affection which he radiated faded instantly. The Colonel's face was in repose now—cold, calculating, vaguely repellent. He scowled slightly.

"Now, isn't that the devil's luck?" he soliloquized. "Young Cardigan is probably the only man in Sequoia—dashed awkward if they should become interested in each other—at this time. They say he's good-looking; certainly he is educated and has acquired some worldly polish—just the kind of young fellow Shirley will find interesting and welcome company in a town like this. Many things can happen in a year—and it will be a year before I can smash the Cardigans. Damn it!"

CHAPTER V.

Along the well-remembered streets of Sequoia Bryce Cardigan and his father walked arm in arm, their progress continuously interrupted by well-meaning but impulsive Sequoians who insisted upon halting the pair to shake hands with Bryce and bid him welcome home. In the presence of those third parties the old man quickly conquered the agitation he had felt at this long-deferred meeting with his son, and when presently they left the business section of the town and turned into a less-frequented street, his emotion assumed the character of a quiet joy, evidenced in a more erect bearing and a firmer tread, as if he strove, despite his seventy-six years, not to appear incongruous as he walked beside his splendid son.

"I wish I could see you more clearly," he said presently. His voice as well as his words expressed profound regret, but there was no hint of despair or heart-break now.

Bryce, who up to this moment had refrained from discussing his father's misfortunes, drew the old man a little closer to his side.

"What's wrong with your eyes, pal?" he queried. He did not often address his parent, after the fashion of most sons, as "Father," "Dad," or "Pop." They were closer to each other than that, and a rare sense of perfect comradeship found expression, on Bryce's part, in such salutations as "pal," "partner" and, infrequently, "old sport."

"Cataracts, son," his father answered. "Merely the penalty of old age." "But can't something be done about it?" demanded Bryce. "Can't they be cured somehow or other?"

"Oh, Bryce, the man hasn't a soul."

GROUND UNDER HEAVY TAXES

People in Bible Times Completely at Mercy of Extortionate Extractors of Tribute.

People in the Bible times were taxed heavily. They were on a straight levy, not based on incomes or excess profits. Payment was compelled and no excuses made, nor were there any exemptions to married men or heads of families. Although there were no army or navy establishments and no airplane program, the people paid their assessments in both gold and silver.

King Solomon compelled the Canaanites who were left in the country to pay him tribute. The rebellion of Jeroboam on account of the heavy taxes levied by Solomon, afterward growing into the revolt of the Ten Tribes, was the most pretentious kick against the levy of the powers in Bible times. Jeroboam was at first compelled to take refuge in Egypt, and it was on account of the taxes and levies laid by Solomon that the Israelites said to Rehoboam, the son of Solomon, upon the latter's death:

"Thy father made our yokes grievous; now therefore make thou the grievous service of thy father and his heavy yokes which he put upon us lighter and we will serve thee."

When Caesar Augustus was in power and Quirinus was governor of Syria, after having just been elected for a third term because he had kept the Syrians out of war, the first named issued a proclamation signed by his secretary of state that the whole world should be taxed. And all the people went to their own city to be taxed. The later editions of the Bible speak of the act as the people being "enrolled."

HISTORY MERELY A LESSON

Paints Pictures Only That They May Be an Inspiration to Future Generations.

History does not relate for the sake of relating; it does not paint for the sake of painting; it relates and paints the past that it may be a living lesson of the future. It proposes to instruct new generations by the experience of those who have gone before them, by exhibiting to them a faithful picture of great and important events with their causes and their effects, with general designs and particular passions, with the faults and virtues that are found commingled in human things. It teaches the excellence of prudence, courage, and great thoughts profoundly meditated, constantly pursued, and executed with moderation and force. It shows the vanity of immoderate pretensions, the power of wisdom and virtue, the impotence of folly and crime. Thucydides, Polybius, and Tacitus undertake anything rather than procuring new emotions for an idle curiosity or a worn threadbare imagination. They doubtless desire to interest and attract, but more to instruct; they are the avowed masters of statesmen and the preceptors of mankind.—Victor Cousin.

For a Headache.

A correspondent recommends the following simple remedy for headache—sick headache particularly. Cut a lemon in half and squeeze the juice into a tumbler. Add a few—very few grains of sugar, and fill the glass nearly three-quarters full of cold water. Now stir in half an eggspoonful of ordinary baking soda. This will fizz up, of course, and the draught must be swallowed during effervescence.

If one does fail to relieve headache, repeat it three hours after. Taken fasting, the first thing in the morning, it will do much to settle the stomach after the sick headache, and probably prevent its recurrence for some time to come. This kitchen physic has prevailed when phenacetin and other nerve-quieters have signally failed to do so.

Patching Wall Paper.

To patch gouges made in the wall by sharp-cornered furniture, fill the hole with plaster of paris to which has been added dissolved glue to delay the hardening process. Use a half cup of dry glue to a half pound of plaster of paris. Let a scrap of the original paper fade in the sun to match the wall paper, and tear out a patch, making it irregular in shape. Carefully peel off layers from the back, thus making the patch as thin as possible and apply to the wall.

One at a Time.

One Saturday afternoon two girl friends and I boarded a crowded street car. We managed to get to the front of the car. As we didn't care to hang to the straps, we held to each other's arms. I was standing next to a seat which was occupied by a man and a woman. The car gave a sudden jerk and I fell into the man's lap, pulling my friends with me, while the man said in a surprised tone, "Never mind pulling the others; one is enough." Everybody roared. O death, where is thy sting!—Chicago Tribune.

Extraordinary Curative Power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I want to let you know what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. I had organic troubles and am going through the Change of Life. I was taken with a pain in my side and a bad headache. I could not lie down, could not eat or sleep. I suffered something terrible and the doctor's medicine did me no good at all—my pains got worse instead of better. I began taking the Vegetable Compound and felt a change from the first. Now I feel fine and advise any one going through the Change of Life to try it, for it cured me after I had given up all hopes of getting better. You can publish this and I will tell any one who writes to me the good it has done me."—Mrs. MARGARET DANZ, 743 N. 25th Street, Phila., Pa.

It hardly seems possible that there is a woman in this country who will continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, proving beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other medicine in the world.

If a new soda fountain drink or a new chewing gum is given a name that is foolish enough it will queer it.

Talk is said to be cheap, but a married man will tell you that it comes high.

At times the kidney secretions hardly passed at all, while again they would come in a flood and oblige me to arise time and time again. The urine burned cruelly."

lost twenty-five pounds in weight; and I had taken so many things without relief I became discouraged. In fact, I was told there was no help for me. "At last I began with Doan's Kidney Pills, and they made a new man of me. It wasn't any time before I was back to normal weight and had passed a life insurance examination, without any trouble. # ZION—Beautiful and Mysterious

Sinawava Temple on the Floor of the Canon.

ZION NATIONAL PARK—The newest of the national park system, established last November—is likely to have many visitors this season. Some will go because it is new. Others will go because of the claim of Utah that Zion equals Yosemite in beauty of form and far exceeds it in beauty of color.

And still others will go because of the story of a mysterious cliff-dwelling that has been discovered—and is believed to be inaccessible and untouched by the hand of modern man. Moreover, a second canon, with many ramifications, has been discovered in Zion National park. White men have been in it—or at least have looked down into it from the plateau thousands of feet above—but they are few. And who knows what relics of the mysterious prehistoric people of the great American Southwest these unexplored canons may contain?

Excavation parties are already getting ready in Salt Lake City and Los Angeles. It's no wonder. The story of the discovery of the inaccessible cliff-dwellings is one to whet the interest of the keenest mountaineer. Thus the story goes:

Eyre Powell of Venice, Calif., pointed his telephoto lens at a high perpendicular cliff in a side canon about three-quarters of a mile away and squeezed the bulb. A certain quarter of an inch in the print attracted his attention. He enlarged it as much as possible. It then showed what is apparently a cliff-dwelling something like 400 feet long and 60 feet wide. The cliff-dwelling is in a shallow cave about 400 feet above the talus at the foot of the cliff. Below it are apparently traces of ledges once used as an ascent and now almost eroded by the elements. Hence it is a fair guess that this particular cliff-dwelling has been unvisited since modern men entered this region.

And if this mysterious, long-hidden abode of the Cliff-dwellers proves to be a reality and is reached by some daring climber, will it yield something new? That of course is the question that adds zest to the quest. For, though here and there are archaeologists who believe they have solved the mystery of the prehistoric people, it looks to the common people as if the scientists were still guessing at the answers to the questions: Who are they? How long did they live there? What became of them? So the possibility that this Zion Cliff-dwellers' inaccessible refuge, untouched by the hand of the spoiler, may contain something that will throw light on these unanswered questions is fascinating.

Curiously enough, the many relics of this prehistoric people throw little or no light on these questions. This is the more strange, since the village sites of the ancient inhabitants, with all the accessories of village life—kivas, shrines, burial places, fields, irrigation works, lookouts, stairways—preserve a pretty complete picture of life in this ancient Southwest. Moreover, buried under the debris of buildings and in the graves of the dead are various artifacts of stone, bone, wood, fiber and clay, which indicate the industrial and domestic life of the people. Ceremonial objects, such as pipes, fetiches and medicine stones, together with the symbolic ornamentation of domestic and mortuary pottery, give glimpses of the social and religious life of the times.

Such structures as are above ground have been pretty thoroughly examined and an astonishing variety has been found. For example, there are many cliff-dwellings, of which those in Mesa Verde National park in southwestern Colorado are probably the finest in all the Southwest.

On the Jemez plateau in the northern central part of New Mexico—a part of which it is proposed to set aside as the national park of the cliff cities—there are both pueblos and cliff-dwellings of the excavated type called "cave dwellings." The pueblo ruins are many-chambered community houses, found upon the mesa-tops and in valleys. The smaller ones are of one story; the larger ones have from two to four stories. The cave dwellings vary widely. Some are enlarged natural caves. Others are wholly artificial excavations in the face of the cliff, the front wall being formed of the natural rock in situ. Some are excavations with a front of masonry. Others are complete houses on a sloping talus, with excavated rooms at the back.

In the Hovenweep region on both sides of the Colorado-Utah line—and between Mesa Verde and Zion—this area is likely to be established as the Hovenweep National monument—are many remarkable towers of varying shape. The archaeologists consider them among the most interesting and important of the prehistoric relics.

Casa Grande National monument in the Gila valley of south central Arizona contains Casa Grande—Great House—which was discovered in 1897 by the Spanish. It was even then a burned-out, dismantled group of walls. It was plastered within and without. It was probably the last of an indefinite number of such houses, as all around it are the ruins of older structures.

Excavation in this prehistoric Southwest is only beginning. The results have attracted the attention of archaeologists the world over. Possibly the most important work to date is that of Dr. J. Walter Fewkes of the Smithsonian Institution in Mesa Verde. There he has excavated and restored in part the temple of the sun and Far View house. These are large and prehistoric structures on the mesa above the cliff-dwellings. They are apparently buildings for religious ceremonies. It is guessed that they were abandoned about 1300 years ago.

The archaeologists are confident that sooner or later they will find something that will answer one or more of the three great questions about this mysterious people of the American Southwest. Will they find it some such ruin as Casa Grande beneath the dust of centuries or will it come to light in some cliff-dwelling now unknown and untouched by vandal hands, such as those suspected to exist in the unexplored depths of Zion?

PARIS LANDMARK MUST GO
House of Robespierre Forced to Give Way to March of City Improvement.

The Paris correspondent of The London Times writes: The house where Robespierre is said to have lived, or at any rate, passed several nights, is to follow the way of many reminders of the past in the general scheme for improving Paris.

This handsomely fronted building is situated in the Cite du Retiro, an antiquated backwater between the Madeleine and the Faubourg Saint Honore, which was overlooked when this quarter was brought up to date. The tenants of the prince of Monaco, to whom the district belongs, have been given notice, but the demolition probably will be postponed for a few years, owing to the action of the law which permits the owners of condemned property to continue using it for five years.

The capital will soon be very much improved, and all slums will disappear in accordance with the general scheme for flattening out the fortifications and allowing the city to undergo natural expansion. With this object the underground railway lines are to be extended far into the country, with two proposed termini at St. Germain and Maisons Laiffite. The Metropolitan railway reaching the latter will greatly ease the strain upon the ordinary railways on race days.

Great Britain's Whites and Blacks.
In the British empire there are 62,000,000 white and 376,000 colored people. The 62,000,000 white represent capital wealth amounting to $500,000,000,000, as against the $5,000,000,000 possessed by the black, brown and yellow people. The degree of illiteracy among the white people, according to Sir Henry Johnson, is probably not more than 15 per cent; among the colored races it is nearly 90 per cent.

Daughter's Views.
Mother was teaching little daughter proper appellations, pointing out the church as "God's house."

Passing one Sunday morning as the congregation was leaving the church after services, little daughter exclaimed:

"Oh, look, mother, at all the crowd. God must be having a party."

A Real Grievance!

The railroad official invited the stern citizen to communicate his troubles.

"I want you to give orders," demanded the visitor, "that the engineer of the express which passes through Elm Grove at 11:55 be restrained from blowing his whistle on Sunday mornings."

"Impossible!" exploded the official. "What prompts you to make such a ridiculous request?"

"Well, you see," explained the citizen, in an undertone, "our pastor preaches until he hears that whistle blow, and that confounded express was twenty minutes late last Sunday."

Cutting Out the Cottonwoods.
In many cities of the Southwest, the cottonwood trees have become a nuisance because of the litter which they make at certain seasons of the year when little wads of cotton are dropped from them and the matter is being met by the wholesale cutting down of these trees. Thousands of these beautiful shade trees are being sacrificed.

SWAMP-ROOT FOR KIDNEY AILMENTS

There is only one medicine that really stands out pre-eminent as a medicine for curable ailments of the kidneys, liver and bladder.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root stands the highest for the reason that it has proven to be just the remedy needed in thousands upon thousands of distressing cases. Swamp-Root makes friends quickly because its mild and immediate effect is soon realized in most cases. It is a gentle, healing vegetable compound.

Start treatment at once. Sold at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

The Birds.
"Those birds fly over here to feed. Their sleeping place is many miles away, but they return every night."

Cuticura for Sore Hands.
Soak hands on retreating in the hot sud of Cuticura Soap, dry and rub in Cuticura Ointment. Remove surplus Ointment with tissue paper. This is only one of the things Cuticura will do if Soap, Ointment and Talcum are used for all toilet purposes.—Adv.

Terrible Tortures From Itching Skin Diseases

No Sure Relief Until the Cause Is Removed.

When the blood becomes infected with millions of tiny disease germs that attack the skin, then the fiery irritation and intense itching will remain with you until these germs are removed from the blood.

Genuine relief therefore, can only be expected from a treatment that goes right to the seat of the trouble, and strikes at its cause. Such a remedy is S. S. S., the reliable old blood purifier that kills the germs of disease, and sends a new supply of rich red blood coursing through the veins.

S. S. S. has been used successfully in some of the worst cases of eczema and other skin disorders.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for infants and children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

FRECKLES

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it at night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

Joy Vosberg, Elizabeth Lichner, Harriet Settle, Caroline Gilbert, Hazel Udell, Phyllis Settle, Virginia Yerxa, Frances Lord, Haidee Addis.

THE WOMAN'S CLUB

By Mrs. Palmer Rhodes.

On Monday, June 14, at 3 p. m., the Woman's club met in social session at the club house, Mrs. Lillian Burkhardt Goldsmith gave the third of the series of programs furnished by her during the past season. Mrs. Goldsmith, charming and gracious as always, received with smiles the storm of applause which greeted her introduction and announced her subject to be "The Book of Job." The writer has no words to describe the wonderful manner in which this reading was given, nor does she know just what message reached each and every one in the audience, but that each did receive a message was potent. In closing her address, the speaker seemed indeed lifted out of herself in her effort to give out something of the spiritual understanding which finally lifted the faithful Job out of the depths of despair, and will do the same for all mankind.

Following the program a social hour was enjoyed, Mrs. W. H. Ingraham, Mrs. W. J. Miller and Mrs. F. J. Sadler acting as hostesses.

Entertainment

Splendid progress is being made on the rehearsals which have been going on nightly, at the Woman's Club house, in preparation for the presentation of the two one-act plays, which will be given on each of the two nights of June 21 and 22. This entertainment is being given as the grand finale of the efforts of the Drama section of the club, for this season, and being especially well cast, and much favored in having as directors Mrs. Lillian Burkhardt Goldsmith and Mrs. J. Milton Steinberger, the performance promises to be one of the best of the very many splendid ones which have been presented here in the past.

The cast for the two plays has been made up of the following persons:

For "The Florist Shop," Mrs. H. E. Allen, Miss Edith Blumer, J. H. Wright, J. N. Hawks, Hall Perry and Allie Miller.

For "Where, But in America," Mrs. J. Milton Steinberger, Helen G. Williams and Edwin Murphy of Pasadena.

Among this cast are several persons who have had professional experience. Mrs. H. E. Allen starred for six years in New York. Mrs. J. Milton Steinberger, the Virginia Timberlake of the Pasadena Community Players, whose excellent work there was so widely discussed, and so favorably criticized, and Mr. Edwin Murphy of Pasadena, with an enviable record as an opera singer, and also as one of the most successful members of the Community Players, especially fine in character parts.

Between the presentation of these two plays, professional dancers, secured by Mrs. Goldsmith from one of the exclusive dancing schools of Los Angeles, will give interpretive numbers. Tickets are selling out rapidly and only a small number of reserved seats are now available.

The services of a splendid orchestra have been secured and on the second evening of the presentation dancing will be indulged in at the close of the performance.
